

Matt Hickman

Eco-living expert blogs about the best ways to go green at home

Playing catch up: Spring training

Looking for an eco-friendly way to usher in spring? Consider de-cluttering, reading a good book, turning the power off, beekeeping or, um, Dumpster diving.

Fri, Mar 19 2010 at 2:25 PM EST

And next, brilliant news! Spring arrives on Saturday and it couldn't come sooner. It's been a loooong winter here in NYC. I'll be greeting the change of seasons by stopping in at the Go Green Expo and the Architectural Digest Home Design Show. Both events are, most conveniently, running side-by-side this year so I'll be able to hit up the best in eco-living and home design in one fell swoop. I also plan on taking a stroll (and some photos) along the High Line since the weather as of late has been super nice.