

artists for humanity

FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 2010

After months of preparation, three AFH studios are in New York City this weekend with a booth at the prestigious Architectural Digest Home Design Show! Our Sculpture/Furniture Design studio brings the signature line of recycled furniture: ReVision. Each young artist in the studio produced new, original pieces especially for the show. AFH Sculpture youth Alice Luu says, “We do a lot of projects for clients, so it was fun getting to make something of our own for the show.” With innovative designs and fresh young talent, the AFH booth is hoping to stand out among the crowd of 300! AFH Sculpture mentor, Jameson, says, “Hopefully, people will be touched by our story and what we’re doing at Artists For Humanity. We’re not just a design company and it’s not just about the aesthetic. We’re creating real opportunities for young artists to create and sell their work. “

Artists For Humanity will also be showcasing the debut of Merida rugs designed by AFH youth in the Graphics studio and vibrant wall décor from Photography studio's signature Kaleidoscopic series.

If you're in the area, come by booth M-111 in the MADE section and say hi!
