Designers are up for Challenge

Jamie Drake of Drake Design Associates is one of four interior designers participating in the first Designer + Consumer Challenge, presented by the New York Metro chapter of the American Society of Interior Design at this year's Architectural Digest Home Design Show. Each designer has created a 10-by-10-foot space in collaboration with a consumer (selected from an essay contest), and show attendees will vote on the winner. Drake, who has decorated homes in Bellport, East Setauket and East Hampton, recently sold his own remodeled East Hampton home for $2.75 million. The other interior designers in the challenge are Bjorn Bjornsson, Barbara Ostrom and James Rixner. All have decorated Long Island homes in the past.
